ST. LOUIS LAUNDRIES MAY FAVOR SYNDICATE

Efforts Begun Year Ago to Be Re vived by Prominent Promoter, It Is Reported.

WILL SOLVE LABOR PROBLEM.

Plants, Overcrowded With Summer Work, Claim That They Cannot Get Sufficient Help to Turn Out Goods.

Efforts which were made last year to form syndicate of thirty-five or more of the larger steam laundry plants in St. Louis be renewed this summer, the scarcity of labor at the beginning of the hot season being worse than a year ago.

Bundles of laundry which should have been delivered Saturday night still lay untouched in some of the laundries yesterday ecause of the lack of labor.

With the increase of work that always comes with summer there is not a corresponding increase in the working force and the solution of the difficulty suggested to the laundry men is that of co-operation Some of the plants are busiest the first of the week, while others experience a rush only on Fridays and Saturdays. It is argued that if a syndicate should form the work could be divided and the several plants relieve each other when there is a rush of work. This, it is claimed, would equalize the business, make property earn more money and give the employes steady

ONE PROMOTER THIS TIME. When an effort was made a year ago to organize a laundry combine in St. Louis three prominent trust companies were promoting the scheme, and it is said that the rivalry then experienced caused the enter-prise to be dropped. Now the syndicate is said to be in the hands of one-trust com-pany, and in the next week, it is further said, a canvass will be made of the laundry owners to enlist them in the new company owners to enlist them in the new company. Prominent among those who are said to be in sympathy with the movement is Kendrick E. Morgan, president of the American Steam Laundry' Company, which has plants both here and at Chicago. Mr. Morgan lives in Chicago, but he was in St. Louis last week, and it is understood that the syndicate plan was suggested to him, with the Mesult that it met with his approval, provided that certain conditions could be secured.

wided that certain conditions could be secured.

Mr. Morgan's company has a contract in St. Louis to do all of the work of the Pullman Sleeping-Car Company, and the capacity of the plant, owing to the shortness of labor, is nearly always taxed. The same conditions have prevailed at Chicago, where there have been strike troubles in the laundry, and it has been impossible to secure relief for the St. Louis branch. New York, May 24.-It became known in cotton circles in this city to day after the close of business on the exchange that W. P. Brown of New Orleans, leader of the

He said that he was not interested in any movement to organize the company, but thought the scheme feasible, and intimated that he would co-operate if called upon.

Persons who claim to know of the syndicate plans says that operations have been carried on quietly and that it was not intended to let the owners know of the scheme until it was ready to be launched. Mr. Morgan, who is now in Chicago, is said to know more of the enterprise than any one else. plants in St. Louis, says that the syndicate Mr. Brown's absence from the floor of the exchange to-day was noticed, although the fact was carefully guarded that he had When the news became known there was a turmoil of excitement and conjecture "The new cotton king has abdicated," was the manner in which one cotton broker expresed it, and then every one began to figure out the reasons which compelled him

FUNERAL OF E. L. GROVER, BRIDEGROOM OF A DAY.

It was said that the new bull leader, who Body of Young Man Who Married Miss Estelle Heuser on Deathbed by his merciless tactics, had closed out his holdings of cotton, taken his profits and quietly gone home.

This statement was denied, however, by friends of the New Orleans man, who said Mr. Brown had not sold a single bale of cotton in the collapse in prices which occurred on Thursday last.

Although theory after theory was set forth to explain the bull leader's sudden departure from the city, the consensus of opinion was that he has gone home to rally the waning enthusiasm of the bull party in New Orleans, of which he is the recognized leader. The funeral took place immediately after-wards. The attendants took carriages at Union Station and were driven to Bellefor taine Cemetery, where the interment was made.

spect for their friend were moved to tears by the grief of the bereaved bride and relatives.

The funeral services were performed at Ironton, Mo., at the country home of Hiram J. Grover, father of Lamoine Grover, by the Reverend W. S. Acomb of the Ironton Presbyterian Church, who married the young couple at the deathbed of the bridegroom. At the cemetery yesterday the Reverend H. H. Gregg of the Washington and Compton Avenues Presbyterian Church officiated.

The death of Lemoine Grover, especially because of its suddenness, shocked his relatives. It also closed a childhood romance of unsurpassed devotion.

Lemoine Grover and Miss Heuser had been sweethearts since childhood. When they grew up they plighted their troth, but as dutiful children they deferred their wedding because their parents thought they were too young to marry. Later their wedding day was set, but several postponements of the event took place through sickness in the family of the bride-to-be.

Several weeks ago the elder Grover left his St. Louis home at No. 3417 Morgan street and went to his summer home at Ironton, Mo., to regain his health. He was taken very sick and his son, Lemoine, was summoned to his bedside a week ago.

Lemoine had a slight cold when he left the city, which gradually weakened him, and he was forced to take to his bed.

So alarming did his condition become that Miss Heuser was summoned to her sweetheart's side, and at his request, they were married.

DIVORCES TWO WIVES PRICE OF BERRIES TO REMARRY SECOND

From Most Romantic Marriage Entanglement.

Life Story of the Once Military Governor of Louisiana Reads Like Strangely Woven Fiction.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 24.-The most romantic and interesting case ever disposed of upder the divorce laws of South Dakota is that of Captain John Amrein, who served during the war of the rebellion until wounded at Antietam, and who during the recon struction period following the Civil War was Military Governor of Louisiana.

He has just been granted an absolute divorce in the courts of this State from Emily D. Amrein of New Orleans on the ground of desertion, his attorney being J. M. Donovan of Sloux Falls. Captain Amrein's resort to the South Dakota courts will result in his being reunited with his second wife, Sara E. S. Amrein, whom he will now remarry, after having secured an annulment of the marriage in order to pave the way for procurement of a divorce from his first wife, REFUSED CARE IN ILLNESS.

While in the service of the United States n Louisiana Captain Amrein was captured by the Ku-Klux. The prisoner, without necessary delay, was ordered to be shot. However, with the aid of friends, he succeeded in making his escape to New Orleans. After a long illness from exposure and malaria he was removed from duty and started North. His wife, Emily, refused to accompany or care for him during his illness. The ship in which he took passage touched at Havana. He was so seriously ill that he was taken ashore and placed in a hospital, where he remained for a period of two months.

When he recovered sufficiently to travel he proceeded to Philadelphia, and as soon as able wrote his wife at New Orleans to join him in Philadelphia. His letter was returned unopened. He then sent Captain August Fix, a fellow-officer, to New Orleans to search for his wife. Captain Fix reported that Mrs. Amrein had stated in New Orleans that Captain Amrein was killed. She had married again. No further trace of her was found.

PENSION GRANTED, WIFE APPEARS. After some years, Captain Amrein again married and for many years Hved in Philadelphia, there being several children born as the result of the second marriage. In 1887 he applied to Congress for a pension. An investigation was made and Congress, in accordance with his application, granted it to him. Information of this must have reached his first wife, Emily, for in 1898 she reached his first wife, Emily, for in 1898 rhe application for one-half of the penmade application for necessary delay, was ordered to be shot. However, with the aid of friends, he suc-

married and for many years hved in Philadelphia, there being several children born as the result of the second marriage. In 1897 he applied to Congress for a pension.
An investigation was made and Congress, in accordance with his application, granted it to him. Information of this must have reached his first wife, Emily, for in 1898 she made application for one-half of the pension granted him, basing her claim on being the wife of the veteran.

Thus, through no fault of Captain Amrein, who fully believed his wife to be dead, he found himself in the curious position of having two living wives. He applied to the courts of Rhode Island, of which State he was then a resident, for a divorce from his first wife. This suit falled because his second marriage was a bar. Subsequently, he became a resident of South Dakota, and obtained an annulment of his marriage to Sara E. S. Amreln, the second wife.

This accomplished, he then instituted an action for divorce against Emily D. Amrein, and it is this divorce when has just been granted him in the courts of South Dakota. After this strange series of incidents growing out of the unexpected discovery that he had two wives living, he will now remarry the second wife.

Thus he will become legally reunited with will now remarry the second wife.

Thus he will become legally reunited with her and their children from whom he was separated by the unlooked for reappearance of his first wife, after all trace and knowledge of her had been lost for more than twenty years.
